PEACE LEAGUE PROPOSED AS PARTY ISSUE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—A plea that the Republican party accept the question of a peace league as a party issue and oppose as a unit the league covenant was reiterated by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, in a letter he made public tonight. The communication was addressed to D. E. Dunne, Wichita, Kansas, and commended the Sedgwick Republican club for resolutions denouncing the league covenant.

The Idaho senator declared the Democrats already had taken a party stand in favor of the league.

Religion Class Has Commencement In Tabernacle

Religion class commencement exercises of the Weber stake were held yesterday afternoon in the Ogden Tabernacle. Diplomas were presented to twenty-six students who have completed the courses prescribed for the various grades of the organization.

With the exception of the direction of the exercises by Stake Superintendent Murray K. Jacobs and the presenting of diplomas by President John Watson, the entire program was carried out in a very creditable manner by children of the organization. That the children have been carefully instructed and taught was evidenced by the way in which they rendered their program of original prayers, solos, brief talks and passages of scripture.

One of the chief features of the program was the presenting of diplomas, which makes the children eligible for membership in the Mutual Improvement association.

President John Watson congratulated the graduates for the work they had done. He said he was pleased to be present and witness the large gathering and to listen to the children render their program. When we witness this exhibition of children and their work, he said, it is a great tribute to the excellent work done by the supervisors. He reported an enrollment of over 700 children in the stake.

Elder Jensen Speaks
Elder N. A. Jensen of the General Board of the Religion Class advised the children to give something back to the organization for the good they had received from it. He expressed the hope that the children would eventually become active workers in the organization. The church, he said, stood for service and activity which brought a safety that would not be found without it. Success, he said, came only through labor. To the graduates, he said, "You have been taught to be clean in body and in mind. I promise you that the Spirit of the Lord will never forsake you in times of trial and temptation if you will remember this teaching."

Superintendent Murray K. Jacobs expressed his appreciation of the valuable service rendered by the various ward supervisors and commenting upon the fact that the supervisors rendered their services much to the disadvantage of their own personal comfort. He made special mention of the services of Mrs. Margaret Bingham, who had been connected with the organization for the past seventeen years.

The program commenced with an organ prelude by Mrs. S. E. Whitaker, after which the children sang from memory and accompanied, the chorus, "Scatter Sunshine."

Opening Prayer
The opening prayer which was offered by the children in concert as they were led by Audrey Woolley of the Ninth ward, and the benediction which was also repeated in concert by the children who were led by John Cragun of the Fifth ward, was expressive of the spiritual development made by the children under the influence of the organization.

A pleasing rendition of the chorus, "Memories of Galilee," was given by members of the Hooper ward and a brief extemporaneous talk on the principles of the gospel was given by Julian Stephens of the Second ward in which he said they were essential for the salvation of man and were taught by Christ by example.

Little Miss Emma Beulah of the First ward displayed great talent in her delightful rendition of the patriotic song, "The Flag Without a Star," and there were very few adults who could give as correct a recitation of the ten commandments as was done by the children from the Roy and Riverdale wards.

Miss Christensen of the Eleventh ward in her saxophone solo displayed talent for which the young musician is becoming famous and little Mildred Barnes made an impression on the congregation as she told the story of the Redemption in the rendition of the solo, "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

Thelma Wadsworth in her valdettory told how the organization endeavored to assist the children to become good men and women and to help them to express their thought and become acquainted with the gospel. She expressed appreciation for the work of the supervisors who she said she knew were working for the love of the children. She advised the graduates to take the motto, "Give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you."

The purity of childhood was vividly portrayed by the little tots from the Twelfth ward in their pleasing rendition of the chorus, "Desert Children, God Will Bless You." LeRoy and Ruth Ferrin gave piano duet.

"Utah, We Love Thee," the concluding chorus which instilled into the lives of the children a love for their own fair state, was rendered by the 400 children present as only members of Utah's best crop can sing.

WILSON CHARGED WITH HOLDING BACK TREATY

PARIS, May 26.—(Havas).—The Echo de Paris today declares that it was on the request of President Wilson that the heads of the Allied and associated powers have declined to permit publication of the full text of the peace treaty presented to the German government by the Allied powers. The newspaper "foresees" inconvenience and risk in opening an important discussion in the United States during his absence.

Dispatches from American correspondents in Paris have stated that it was understood the chief opposition to making the treaty public came from Premier Lloyd George, although President Wilson later had approved the British premier's view.

GREAT REJOICING OVER AVIATORS

Hawker and Grieve's Safety
Fills British Flyers With High Spirits.

ST. JOHNS, May 25.—Messages from London today announcing the safety of Hawker and Grieve spread through this city rapidly.

Rejoicing was general, but was perhaps greatest among the group of British aviators who had been preparing to follow Hawker.

Captain Frederick P. Raynham, who was stopped in his attempt to follow Hawker by the collapse of his Martinsyde's under carriage, had helped firmly to the belief that Hawker and Grieve would be found somewhere north of Scotland.

"This storm assumed the form of an ell extending northwest from the Azores," said Raynham. "That meant that Hawker would first encounter northeast winds, then easterly winds, then a strong set of winds from the south, those from the south being continuous and stronger than the others."

Further apparent substantiation of Raynham's theory was found in reports brought here last night by the British freighter Glendevon from London.

The wireless officer of the Glendevon, said at 1:30 Monday morning (Greenwich time), he overheard the steamer Sammamang sending to "Dak" the Sopwith's radio designation, her position as 50 degrees 23 minutes north latitude and 30 degrees west longitude. Subsequently the Sammamang informed the officer it had sighted the red light of a plane to the north.

A few hours later the Glendevon was overtaken by a northeast gale, working down from the direction in which the red light, believed to have been that of the Sopwith plane, had disappeared.

The Glendevon sent out repeated calls to other ships, broadcasting the reported positions of the Sopwith and requesting that ships stand by to give aid, but received a response only from the cableship Faraday.

The log of the Glendevon shows the development of the weather which Hawker went through and which the captain of the Glendevon said he stated at the time was so "tempestuous" that no plane could live through it.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Danish steamship Mary, which picked up Hawker and Grieve, was originally the British freighter Grovehall and was built at West Hartlepool eleven years ago.

The Mary is not equipped for rescue work, being just a little single-decked ship, traveling in high latitudes to shorten the route and save coal. Her net tonnage is 1124 and her length 173 feet.

She was bound from New Orleans for Aarhus, Denmark, May 4. Making eight knots an hour it took her 23 days on her last trip to the westward from Shields to New Orleans.

Fete Planned for NC-4.
PLYMOUTH, England, Saturday, May 24.—(By The Associated Press).—The United States destroyer Stockton is expected here tomorrow with the crews of the NC-1 and NC-2, which were forced to withdraw from the trans-Atlantic flight. Commander John H. Towers will take charge of the naval preparations for the reception of the NC-4, the surviving entry in the flight.

Two days fete has been planned for the entertainment of the crew of the NC-4 on their arrival at Lisbon.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—News of the rescue of Hawker and Grieve, British airmen, was received nowhere with greater rejoicing than in the navy department here. American naval officers former rivals, turned to ardent supporters the moment Hawker and his navigator "jumped off" a week ago.

Since the failure of the British airmen to arrive on schedule time in the land greatest anxiety for their safety has been expressed by naval officers here. To some officers the accomplishments of the American seaplanes in the trans-Atlantic attempt gave way to sadness at the believed fate of Hawker and Grieve.

"That is fine," was the general comment of officers at the navy department.
